

Disney BIG SHOT

BIOGRAPHY Monique Green

Monique Green was born in Miami, FL before moving to Los Angeles, CA. Though she had always been around the entertainment industry, she didn't get bit by the acting bug until she was 13 years old. After her first role on "Criminal Minds," she was hooked, but still wanted to stay dedicated to her studies. She made the commitment to act and go to school. She graduated high school on the Dean's list, and she got accepted to Loyola Marymount University where she was able to make her schedule to accommodate both studying and auditions.

Green booked her first series regular role her freshman year on "Libby & Malcolm" that was created by Kenya Barris and starred Courtney B. Vance and Felicity Huffman. While in school she also did guest spots on "This is Us," "Fuller House," and recurred as Junior's girlfriend on "black-ish." She also worked with Patty Jenkins on "I Am The Night." After graduating college Cum Laude with a degree in Psychology, Mandarin, and Asian Pacific Studies in 2019, she booked "Big Shot" starring opposite John Stamos and Yvette Nicole Brown. She plays a charismatic, opinionated, confident girl named Olive who plays on the all-girls high school basketball team coached by John Stamos.

In her free time, Green enjoys singing, reading, and hanging out with her teacup maltipoo. She is repped by Luber Roklin Entertainment and Rogers & Cowan/PMK.
