

Conor Welch
Executive Producer

Conor Welch is executive producer of the chilling new series "Goosebumps," inspired by R.L. Stine's worldwide bestselling books, premiering on Disney+ and Hulu.

Welch, along with writer and director Nicholas Stoller, started Stoller Global Solutions in 2018. Since then, through their overall deal with Sony Pictures Television, they have developed and executive produced several projects, including "Panhandle" and "Platonic," starring Seth Rogen and Rose Byrne.

Additionally, Welch has produced several film projects with Stoller, including "You're Cordially Invited," starring Reese Witherspoon and Will Ferrell, and "Incoming," written and directed by John and Dave Chernin.

Prior to partnering with Stoller, Welch served as vice president of Comedy Development at Fox Broadcasting Co. While there, he developed a number of half-hour sitcoms, including "The Grinder," starring Rob Lowe. Welch previously served as the head of Feature Film for Funny or Die and vice president of Development and Production for Red Hour Films.

Raised in Lewiston-Auburn, Maine, Welch graduated from the University of Pennsylvania.
