

BIOGRAPHY
David Schwimmer
“Anthony”

David Schwimmer is an accomplished actor, director and producer. He is co-founder of the Lookingglass Theater Company in Chicago, recipient of the Tony Award for best regional theatre, now celebrating its 36th Anniversary Season.

Schwimmer will next be seen in Disney+ and Hulu’s anthology series “Goosebumps: The Vanishing,” based on R.L. Stine’s bestselling Scholastic books. Schwimmer will star as the former botany professor and divorced father to teenage twins who unearth a looming threat, unraveling a profound mystery. As they delve into the unknown, the duo becomes entangled in the chilling tale of four teenagers who mysteriously vanished in 1994.

Schwimmer’s many television and film acting credits include the hit comedy series Friends, for which he received his first Emmy Award Nomination, American Crime Story: The People v. O.J. Simpson for which he received a second Emmy nomination, Band of Brothers, Curb Your Enthusiasm, Madagascar 1, 2 & 3, Feed the Beast, Six Days Seven Nights, Apt Pupil, The Pallbearer, Duane Hopwood, The Iceman, The Laundromat and Little Death. Schwimmer executive produced and starred as the lead in the Sky TV / Peacock original sitcom Intelligence and in Extrapolations for Apple TV+.

Schwimmer has directed over twenty plays, including his adaptations of Studs Terkel’s RACE and Upton Sinclair’s The Jungle for Lookingglass, and Laura Eason’s Sex with Strangers for the Second Stage Theatre. Other stage credits outside of Lookingglass include Detroit at Playwrights Horizons, The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial on Broadway and the premiere of Neil LaBute’s Some Girls in the West End, London.

Schwimmer’s television and film directing includes ten episodes of Friends, the HBO series Little Britain USA, the feature films Since You’ve Been Gone, Run Fat Boy Run and the independent drama Trust starring Clive Owen, Catherine Keener and Viola Davis. He also produced the film LOVE based on the play written and directed by Alexander Zeldin for the BBC.

For over two decades, Schwimmer served on the Board of Directors of The Rape Foundation, dedicating his time and energy to raising public consciousness about rape and sexual assault. In 2017, he executive produced and starred in #ThatsHarassment, six short films and three PSAs released digitally and on television (as well as running in all New York City and Chicago taxi cabs) and, after forming partnerships with The Ad Council, RAINN and the National Women’s Law Center, helped launch a national campaign to empower victims and bystanders while providing tools to help employers create safe work environments.
