Dior Goodjohn

"Clarisse La Rue"

Dior Goodjohn is a budding actress and singer-songwriter who is quickly emerging as one of Hollywood's most dynamic young talents.

Known for her commanding onscreen presence and natural versatility, Goodjohn currently stars as 'Clarisse La Rue', the fierce and competitive daughter of Ares, in the Disney+ hit series "Percy Jackson and the Olympians." The fan-favorite show and winner of the Nickelodeon Kids' Choice Award for Favorite Kids' TV Show, will debut its second season on December 10th and is currently in production on its highly anticipated third season.

Goodjohn made her series regular debut in HBO Max's reboot of the classic 1980s sitcom "Head of the Class," where she portrayed 'Robyn Rook, ' a sharp-witted gamer with a sarcastic edge. She then went on to star in the third season of Nickelodeon's acclaimed anthology series "Are You Afraid of the Dark?," playing 'Summer DaCosta', a charismatic member of the Midnight Society. The show earned both a Kids' Choice Award nomination and a Children's & Family Emmy nomination for Outstanding Children's or Family Viewing Series.

Born in Santa Monica, California, Goodjohn began her career at just eight months old, appearing in an Old Navy campaign. By age three, she was featured in national commercials for JCPenney and ABCmouse, and at four, she joined the cast of Debbie Allen's beloved holiday production, "The Hot Chocolate Nutcracker." At six, Goodjohn portrayed young 'Santana' (Naya Rivera) in the hit FOX series "Glee," followed by memorable guest-starring roles on Disney Channel's "Raven's Home" and CBS's "The Unicorn."

A passionate musician, Dior began recording songs she co-wrote at the age of nine. Influenced by legends such as Beyoncé, Etta James, Mariah Carey, Whitney Houston, Michael Jackson and contemporary icons like Billie Eilish, Charli xcx and Amaaare, Dior's artistry blends classic vocal strength with modern emotional depth. Her debut single, "Focus," released earlier this year, quickly surpassed 1 million streams on Spotify.

With her authenticity, drive, and magnetic talent, Goodjohn continues to captivate audiences and solidify her place as one of the most exciting rising stars in the entertainment industry. Goodjohn is currently based in Los Angeles, California.
