Born Nathaniel Stroman, Earthquake is a comedian, actor, voice artist and radio personality who has spent nearly three decades entertaining audiences around the world. His critically acclaimed Netflix comedy special "Chappelle's Home Team – Earthquake: Legendary" was praised by The New York Times as one of the funniest comedy specials of the year.

Earthquake became a familiar face to audiences in the 1990s through appearances on BET's "Comic View," HBO's "Def Comedy Jam," "Laffapalooza" and "Shaq's All-Star Comedy Jam." His stand-up specials include "About Got Damn Time," "Walter Latham Presents," "From the Outhouse to the Whitehouse" and Showtime's "These Ain't Jokes." A popular touring comedian, he has performed as a headliner on major comedy tours and in clubs nationwide.

His television credits include "Everybody Hates Chris," "In the Cut," "Rel," "South Side," "The Neighborhood," "Johnson" and "Winning Time: The Rise of the Lakers Dynasty." Earthquake has also appeared in the films "Barnyard," "Something Like a Business" with Kevin Hart, "Getting Played" with Vivica A. Fox, "The Longshots," "Clerks II," "Armed" and "Bed-Ridden." His voice acting work includes Nickelodeon's "Back at the Barnyard," as well as voice work for the brands Nike and Beats by Dre.

Earthquake also hosts "Quake's House" on Kevin Hart's Laugh Out Loud Network, airing on SiriusXM Channel 96. The radio show features his signature humor and conversations about current events, relationships and entertainment, along with celebrity guests.

Based in Los Angeles, Earthquake continues to tour nationwide, perform stand-up comedy and pursue television and film projects.
