JANE ROOT BIO Executive Producer and Founder, Nutopia

In 2008, Jane Root founded Nutopia, the ground-breaking U.K. and U.S.-based production company known for creating award-winning, factual series on a global scale. They created a new genre of television, the “mega-doc,” which combines epic cinematography and action-driven drama in a high-end documentary with A-list talent.

Root and Nutopia have become synonymous with creating high-quality, notable content for buyers, including Netflix, Disney+, CNN, National Geographic, BBC, PBS, HBO Max and A+E Networks. Prior to founding Nutopia, Root was president of Discovery Networks and controller of BBC2, where she commissioned ground-breaking shows such as “The Office” and “Dragons Den.” Root was a co-founder of Wall-to-Wall, where, as managing director, she guided the company through its first 10 years.

Upcoming projects include LIMITLESS with Chris Hemsworth and WELCOME TO EARTH with Will Smith for Disney+. Nutopia also produced the much-honored National Geographic series ONE STRANGE ROCK, “A World of Calm” for HBO Max, hybrid-doc series “The Last Czars” for Netflix, and Emmy® Award-winning series “How We Got to Now” and “America: The Story of the US.”
