A Mississippi native, Miller grew up in a large blended family with eight siblings, shaping his sharp, unfiltered comedic style. Before pursuing comedy full-time, he worked as a firefighter in Oxford, Mississippi, before moving to Atlanta in 2005 to pursue his dream of making people laugh.

Best known as a veteran cast member of MTV's "Wild 'N Out" with Nick Cannon, Miller has built a career across television, film and digital media. His credits include NBC's "Last Comic Standing," MTV's "Joking Off," MTV2's "Uncommon Sense," BET's "Comic View," "Bill Bellamy's Who's Got Jokes?," HBO's "All Def Comedy," Bounce TV's "Family Time" and MTV's "What's My Secret?" He also appeared in the horror-comedy film "Haunted Heist" alongside Lil Rel Howery and Tiffany Haddish, which made its film festival debut to critical acclaim, and released a 30-minute stand-up special on Kevin Hart's Laugh Out Loud Network.

As co-creator and host of "The 85 South Show" alongside DC Young Fly and Chico Bean, Miller has built a dedicated fanbase, with the iHeartRadio Best Comedy Podcast Award-nominated show selling out arenas nationwide. The trio's Netflix special "85 South: Ghetto Legends" debuted at No. 1, and in 2024, they curated and hosted a lineup of comedians at the Netflix Is a Joke comedy festival. A devoted hip-hop fan, Miller has also collaborated with artists including Jermaine Dupri, Case, Gucci Mane, Dem Franchize Boyz, Granddaddy Souf, Big Oomp and T.I.'s Grand Hustle Comedy.

Miller is a two-time host of BET's "Hip Hop Awards" and has appeared in SpringHill's "Recipe for Change: Celebrating Black Men," HBO's "Game Theory with Bomani Jones" and BET's "College Hill: Celebrity Edition." His viral appearance on "Club Shay Shay" with Shannon Sharpe amassed more than 2 million views in 24 hours, and he won his episode of “Spell Off,” donating his winnings to the Boys and Girls Club of North Mississippi.

An accomplished stand-up comedian, Miller consistently sells out shows nationwide. He recently completed his solo tour, “At the End of the Day,” and is currently traveling the country with the “We Them Ones” comedy tour.
