

BIOGRAPHY

Kolton Stewart

"Zelly"

Kolton Stewart began his career with a passion for playing the drums, the guitar, the keyboard and singing, which all allowed him to compete in international competitions. At 8 years old, he suffered a life-changing sports injury that turned his focus to theater, where he performed in the Stratford Festival Theater Productions of "Music Man," "West Side Story" and "Macbeth." He was then casted as the first Canadian Child to join the North American Tour of Broadway's "The Lion King" as Young Simba.

Following his theater success, Stewart jumped to television and starred as Jarvis in Canada's "Some Assembly Acquired," which is now in its third season. Additional film and television credits include "Locke and Key," Disney Channel's "The Swap," "My Big Fat Greek Wedding 2" and being interviewed and performing on "The Ellen DeGeneres Show" after one of his performances on YouTube went viral in 2013.

Outside of work, Stewart enjoys playing video games and sports, working out, writing scripts, filming movies and working on his debut album.

Stewart currently resides in Ontario and Toronto, Canada.