Liamani Segura
"Emmy"

Liamani Segura is a 13-year-old actor and singer from Racine, Wisconsin. The young prodigy began singing at 6 years old and is self-taught. Her parents were struck by her talent and posted a video. Soon she developed a following as people marveled at the little girl with the big voice. She was asked to portray Dorothy in The Wiz at Lees-McRae Summer Theater in North Carolina. Liamani found she loved being on stage and acting. She once again took the stage as Young Fiona in Shrek locally. As a result of her social media platforms, offers came pouring in asking her to perform at sporting events, and soon she found herself singing the National Anthem for the Milwaukee Bucks, The Milwaukee Brewers, the Indianapolis 500, NCAA Women's Championships and more. Celebrities and press also took notice of the young talent with the beyond-her-years vocals. Steve Harvey, Ellen Degeneres, Jessie J, TMZ, BET and more were wowed and recognized or shared her songs. Wanya Morris of Boyz II Men was so impressed by Liamani, that he had her open for the Boyz II Men Concert in Wisconsin and had her perform alongside the iconic group at the Philadelphia Met. Most recently, she had the honor of performing at Mariah Carey's Induction into the Songwriters Hall of Fame by singing a medley of the Artist's songs in New York City. She is thrilled to be a part of the "High School Musical: The Musical: The Series" cast this season and is a huge Disney fan.
