Lucas Grabeel
Himself / "Ryan Evans"

Lucas Grabeel began his professional acting career in 2003 after moving to California from Springfield, Missouri. Shortly after, Grabeel was cast as Ryan Evans in Disney Channel's "High School Musical" trilogy. The success of the film franchise led to two rock concert tours across North and South America, where Grabeel served as emcee for the entire HSM cast. In 2008, Grabeel appeared alongside Sean Penn in the Academy Award-winning biopic "Milk," directed by Gus Van Sant. Some of his other film credits include "Virginia," "Little Women," and "College Road Trip."

In addition to his time on the big screen, Grabeel had recurring roles on the popular TV shows "Veronica Mars" and "Smallville," and appeared as a series regular on Freeform's "Switched at Birth" for 5 seasons.

For over 15 years, Grabeel has worked in animation, lending his voice to shows that include "Family Guy," "Sheriff Callie's Wild West," "Pinky Malinky," "Robot Chicken," "Phineas and Ferb," "Elena of Avalor," "Cleopatra in Space," "Spirit Riding Free," "The Cleveland Show," and many more. Grabeel has been writing original music for over two decades, some of which have appeared in various television shows and features, including the "High School Musical" franchise itself.
