

Song Descriptions

"Alien Invasion" – This exciting production number kicks off the movie as a mysterious alien spaceship arrives in Seabrook. Featuring the entire cast, "Alien Invasion" exudes a sci-fi vibe and electronic track that evokes "Close Encounters."

"Ain't No Doubt About It" – Zed and Addison break the fourth wall in this comedic and optimistic duet that reveals how they've matured since the start of the "ZOMBIES" franchise.

"Come On Out" – In this edgy and suspenseful K-Pop-influenced pop song, the werewolves take to the streets to hunt for the aliens in a musical game of Hide and Seek.

"What Is This Feeling?" – This playful R&B track, in which Addison realizes that one of the aliens has developed feelings for Zed and she and the rest of the gang try to explain the meaning of love, is utilized as a needle drop in the film but is available in full on the "ZOMBIES 3" soundtrack.

"Exceptional Zed" – Nervous about his college interview, Zed seeks to boost his confidence in this pop-rock musical comedy number that features a hybrid of spoken word and song. Addison, werewolves and zombies join in for a joyful expression of support.

"Finally Me" – Addison expresses energy and emotion in this cheerleading number that features pop, dance and rock elements and inspiration from great female artists such as Lady Gaga, Beyoncé and Madonna.

"Utopia" – The Aliens' precise, robotic cheer competition number features a rhythmic dance track and only one lyric: "Utopia."

"Someday" (reprise) – In this new reprise of the ballad "Someday" from "ZOMBIES" and "ZOMBIES 2," the whole cast joins in for a fresh take on the hugely popular song.

"Nothing But Love" – In this fun and enjoyable finale, the residents of Seabrook reunite as they discover there is truly no place like home.
