MISTAKES WERE MADE

PRODUCTION NOTES

Based on the best-selling book by Stephan Pastis, the Disney+ original movie "Timmy Failure: Mistakes Were Made" follows the hilarious exploits of Timmy Failure, a quirky, deadpan 5th grader from Portland who, along with a 1,500-pound polar bear named Total, operates Total Failure Inc., a detective agency. Somewhat of an outsider at his elementary school, Timmy is clueless but confident and wants to see his detective agency become the best in the world. But first he must navigate the world of adults around him, including his overburdened mother Patty, her well-meaning boyfriend Crispin, his teacher and nemesis Mr. Crocus, and Mr. Jenkins, a schoolmandated guidance counselor, and figure out what it means to be normal when you know deep down inside vou're different.

"Timmy Failure: Mistakes Were Made" is directed by Tom McCarthy from a screenplay by Tom McCarthy and Stephan Pastis based on the book by Pastis. The producers are Jim Whitaker, p.g.a., and Tom McCarthy, p.g.a., with Michael Bederman and Kate Churchill serving as executive producers. The film stars: Winslow Fegley as Timmy Failure, Ophelia Lovibond as Patty Failure, Kyle Bornheimer as Crispin, Wallace Shawn as Mr. Crocus and Craig Robinson as Mr. Jenkins.

GETTING STARTED

Stephan Pastis, creator and illustrator of the syndicated comic strip "Pearls Before Swine," wrote his first children's book, "Timmy Failure: Mistakes Were Made," in 2013. The book, a chapter book targeting middle school students, became a New York Times bestseller and spawned six additional titles ("Now Look What You've Done," "We Meet Again," "Sanitized for Your Protection," "The Book You're Not Supposed to Have," "The Cat Stole My Pants" and "It's the End When I Say It's the End"). It also made a fan out of filmmaker Tom McCarthy ("The Station Agent," "The Visitor" and "Win Win").

"A colleague of mine had read the book and thought it was hilarious, so she put it on my desk and I was immediately engaged by it," says McCarthy. "I thought the humor and the voice were original, and it had a subversive quality yet was still very accessible and unique. I fell in love with the character and his indomitable spirit."

At that point he didn't know what it could be, but McCarthy immediately hit it off with Pastis, as they share a love of movies and good storytelling, and the project began to take shape. McCarthy, who was just coming off the success of "Spotlight," a film he wrote and directed and for which he won an Oscar® for best original screenplay, was looking to make a film that parents would enjoy as much as kids. "Kids are so sophisticated right now, so we doubled down and trusted that they would elevate to the movie," he says.

McCarthy and Pastis decided to team up and write the screenplay together, and both were intent on remaining as faithful to the book as possible. "For me, it was important that the characters kept their voices that I created for the books and that they were pure," says Pastis.

"Timmy is a special kid," continues Pastis. "He's really kind of lost in his own head, but that head is pretty magnificent. He has grand ideas and he's very imaginative and creative. His escape from the world is really that—dipping into his own head. He can survive any situation by disappearing inward."

McCarthy reached out to Jim Whitaker ("A Wrinkle in Time," "Pete's Dragon"), who immediately read the book and came on board as producer. "The book has this amazing theme of being different and testing the idea of what it means to try and be normal when at heart you're different," says Whitaker, "and I loved what Tom was looking to do with the story. I was humbled to be invited into the process."

Whitaker also found the fantasy sequences appealing, saying, "It's an independent film that has these giant flash-aways that have scope and emotionality to them that I think are going to make the movie both grounded and, at the same time, incredibly funny."

In addition to the story's comedic elements, there are emotional elements as well. Pastis explains, "I think it's great because on one track it's meant to be funny, so all of Timmy's visual fantasies are often outrageous—and hopefully funny—but at the same time there's this heart line that runs through the story. Here's this boy with a single mom, and no dad, and you feel that."

THE COLORFUL CAST OF CHARACTERS

For the title role of Timmy Failure, a unique young boy with a polar bear as his sidekick, the filmmakers auditioned thousands of kids before meeting Winslow Fegley. "He's the one who was able to play Timmy from a point of view of being just himself and, at the same time, not understand there's a hint of irony in any of the humor that's played," says producer Jim Whitaker. "He plays it straight, uniquely, and as a result of that, brilliantly."

"Right off the bat, Winslow had a quality and look that felt right," says director Tom McCarthy. "He just had a really good command of language and for a young actor he has a lot of poise and a tremendous amount of presence. And he has a quality that no matter what he's still somewhat accessible, and Timmy can be the kind of character that pushes people away. Timmy's a different kid, he doesn't have a lot of friends, and he's a tough kid to get close to, so you need someone who can play both sides of that."

British actress Ophelia Lovibond ("Guardians of the Galaxy") was cast as Patty Failure, a single mom struggling to survive economically while raising her son Timmy.

"The script is unlike anything else I'd read, and even though it was described as being for children, I genuinely enjoyed it...it really made me laugh," says Lovibond. "The character of Timmy is so unusual...he just captures your imagination."

"Patty is a hardworking hipster who's trying to hold together a household, several jobs, and at the same time be able to allow for this very different kid to be who he is," adds Whitaker. "Ophelia has done a beautiful job with the role. She's a Brit undercover who looks and acts like she's from Portland."

To get into character, Lovibond dyed her hair purple and wore fake tattoos. "Each tattoo has a story behind it," she says, "like one hasn't been colored in because she got it and then Timmy came along and she had no money to have it finished."

Timmy's teacher and nemesis, Mr. Crocus, is brought to life via the incomparable Wallace Shawn ("Toy Story 4"). "He plays this curmudgeonly, angry, not-willing-to-smile, absolutely going to persecute this unique kid into submission, until he ultimately discovers that Timmy's going to get the better of him, and is really funny," says Whitaker.

Says Shawn, "My character represents society and authority in the movie, but Timmy believes himself to be a detective, not a student in the 5th grade, so he is not afraid of Mr. Crocus' threats, so Mr. Crocus is, in a way, powerless."

Craig Robinson ("The Office") was cast as Mr. Jenkins, a laid-back guidance counselor at Timmy's school. "Mr. Jenkins really cares about his students," says Pastis, "sort of the opposite of Crocus. He wants to find out what makes these kids tick and get to them that way. For Timmy, he realizes it's the detective-agency stuff, so he takes that path."

"I love that he's the one that keeps it real with Timmy," says Robinson. "He's the one that says, 'You don't have to be like everyone else,' and that's why I wanted this role. It's also a departure from what I normally do, but it's special to be the person who believes in our hero and gets him to the next level."

Kyle Bornheimer ("Marriage Story") is Crispin, Patty Failure's earnest yet misguided boyfriend and a parking enforcement officer, which Timmy sees as an unambitious career path. "Timmy tends not to be very trustful of new adults in his life," says Pastis. "He also sees him as an intruder, because Timmy lives alone with his mom and he doesn't like someone else coming over to their house."

Crispin is the one character who changed the most significantly from the book to the screen. "In the book he's a pretty bad character through and through," says Pastis. "But not this Crispin. This Crispin is rather sweet and endearing."

For Bornheimer, playing the role of Crispin was a no-brainer. "My kids are big fans of these books, so it was a chance for me to play a role that my kids could see," he says. "And then the character himself was just this fun, kind of pure-of-heart but a little bit of a bull in a china shop...a character too good to pass up."

"Crispin ends up getting in Timmy's heart because he really believes in him," says Whitaker. "There's a great scene in the movie where Timmy is forced to ask Crispin to help him find a 1,500-pound polar bear and Crispin just says, 'Cool, let's go.'"

Kei ("Fresh Off the Boat") was cast as Timmy's best friend, Rollo Tookus, but they're actually more like frenemies because they don't really get along with each other all that well. "Rollo is a little anxious because he obsesses about his grade point average as he wants to get into Stanford when he gets older," says Pastis. "A lot of the semester is spent on group tests, and Timmy is in Rollo's group, so he's scared to death Timmy will tank his GPA, which he will. So I think they're friends because for Rollo, Timmy's kind of exciting...even though he might not admit it."

Chloe Coleman ("My Spy") plays an animal activist classmate of Timmy's, Molly Moskins. Molly is in love with him, but Timmy barely knows she's alive. "That's the relationship. It's funny because she keeps flirting, and Timmy doesn't know what that is. He just thinks that's odd behavior," says Pastis.

Ai-Chan Carrier ("Training Day") is Corrina Corrina, a pleasant and upbeat student who is well-liked at Timmy's school. Timmy, however, is convinced she is in cahoots with the Russians and plans to destroy his detective agency.

ABOUT THE PRODUCTION

With the cast in place, the filmmakers assembled a creative team comprising a talented group of seasoned artists, including: Masanobu Takayanagi, ASC ("Hostiles"), as director of photography; Philip Messina as production designer; Tom McArdle, ACE ("Marshall"), as editor; Rich McBride as visual effects supervisor; Kari Perkins ("Boyhood") as costume designer; and Rolfe Kent ("Labor Day") as composer.

Principal photography on "Timmy Failure: Mistakes Were Made" commenced in June 2018 in the greater Vancouver, British Columbia, area before continuing on to Portland, Ore. Most of the soundstage work took place in Vancouver, and the majority of the location work in Portland. According to production designer Philip Messina ("The Hunger Games"), "Director Tom McCarthy did not want to cheat Portland. There's a close proximity between Vancouver and Portland, but Portland has a unique sensibility that we wanted to convey on screen."

New Orleans was Timmy Failure's home in the books, but the filmmakers felt Portland was the perfect place for the film's setting. "Tom had a really specific vision that the city Timmy lived in had to be as different and as weird as the character of Timmy himself, and Portland fits that bill perfectly," says producer Jim Whitaker. "It's a city that marches to the beat of its own drum; it celebrates being weird and it celebrates being different, which perfectly mirrors the theme of the movie, which is, it's okay to be different."

With that in mind, the filmmakers set out to make Portland a character of its own, filming at such iconic locations in and around the city as the Portland Zoo, the Irvington neighborhood, the Cathedral Park neighborhood, the Alberta district and the Bonneville Dam. "We pulled every possible location that felt different, unusual and still based on character to give it a strong sense of Portland," says Whitaker.

Principal photography wrapped in September 2018, with the iconic St. Johns Bridge outside Portland serving as the final location.

CREATING TOTAL

When it came to creating Total the polar bear, Timmy's constant companion and business partner, the filmmakers knew there was only one man for the job: visual effects supervisor Rich McBride ("Gravity"). It was McBride who designed and created the bear that terrorizes Leonardo DiCaprio's character in the Oscar®-winning film "The Revenant," and it was McBride whom producer Jim Whitaker reached out to, having previously worked with the visual effects maestro on "A Wrinkle in Time."

As in the book, Total is a male polar bear who doesn't speak and is lazy and sluggish. He is over 10 feet long and slightly over 5 feet tall when walking on all four legs. He is over 11 feet tall when standing on his hind legs and weighs 1,500 pounds roughly. "He is on the large size for a male polar bear," says McBride, "as we wanted to ensure there was a nice contrast in size between him and Timmy."

Total's physical look is based on one of the three polar bears living at the Canadian Polar Bear Habitat in Cochrane, Ontario. General polar bear behavior references came from documentary footage viewed by McBride. According to Whitaker, "Total's relaxed uniqueness is one of the things that makes the movie special, because everyone is going to expect the polar bear to say and do funny things."

Because Total is an endearing, funny, charming and realistic polar bear that has a true emotional connection with Timmy, McBride and his team designed a computer-generated creature that appears to breathe and move like a real polar bear. But the reality and believability of Total is based on not just what is visible in the shot but also what has been created underneath the surface of the fur. These VFX artists created a complete skeleton, a full muscle system and a full skin system that drive the behavior and movement of the fur on the surface.

"We did something revolutionary with Total because, unlike most Disney characters, this one doesn't talk, and when people see him they'll wonder how we trained this bear, which is a tricky thing to pull off," says director Tom McCarthy.

To film scenes with Timmy and Total in the same shot, the filmmakers made sure there was always something—or someone—for Winslow Fegley to interact with, which also helped McCarthy, cinematographer Masanobu Takayanagi and the rest of the crew to understand where Total would be in the shot. This helped with framing and lighting, and helped editor Tom McArdle (who was building the movie as it was being filmed) to better understand what Total was doing.

Michael Adamthwaite ("The BFG") served as the creature reference and wore multiple polar bear suits, depending on what the scene entailed. The largest suit was designed to provide a sense of Total's full size when walking around on all fours, and required him to wear custom extension stilts on both hands to even out the length between his legs and arms and flatten out his back. PVC tubing with rotating joint connections attached to the head allowed for a slight bit of back and forth sway, and the torso structure extended back far enough to show how long Total was from tail to nose.

When more flexibility in Total's performance was needed—or when speed was of the essence—Adamthwaite wore a special steering-wheel Total head and a grey suit. "This enabled Michael to control the performance with more ease via a ring inside the base of the molded head that he could grip with his hands," says McBride.

"TIMMY FAILURE: MISTAKES WERE MADE," STREAMING ONLY ON DISNEY+

"Timmy Failure: Mistakes Were Made," which premieres on February 7, 2020, streaming only on Disney+, is a live-action kids' movie that adults will find entertaining as well. "Disney hasn't made a film like this in quite a while," says director Tom McCarthy. "It is part independent film, part classical, and it breaks some rules and presents a character that we haven't seen represented before."

"The central message of Timmy Failure is to be true to who you are. No matter how unique you are, how different you are, be true to who you are," says producer Jim Whitaker.

"Everyone who worked on this film came at it from different backgrounds and none of us had really made a movie for children before," continues McCarthy. "We were excited to try and elevate that as much as possible and play it and experience it as Timmy does...that's what we set out to do, and I'm really happy with how it turned out."

ABOUT THE CAST

WINSLOW FEGLEY (Timmy Failure) hails from Allentown, Pa., where he was born into a family of actors: son of actors Michael Fegley and Merce Tonne and brother to actors August Fegley and Oakes Fegley. Winslow attends a Waldorf school, and his outside studies include piano, tap and break dancing. He enjoys going to the theater and museums, and is an avid Minecrafter.

He began his acting journey at age 5 voicing a local radio commercial and soon landed on stage at the Civic Theatre of Allentown as the young Ebenezer at 6 in a production of "A Christmas Carol." He has worked in commercials, on student films and in several features. He can be seen on the Disney Channel series "Fast Layne," starring as Mel. Also, Winslow is extremely proud of his work together with his father in "A Billion Nights on Earth," a stage production he also added creative collaboration to, working along with avant-garde theater artists Thaddeus Phillips and Steven Dufala.

OPHELIA LOVIBOND (Patty Failure) was born in London. At age 14, she secured her first professional role in the Channel 4 sitcom "The Wilsons," about the dysfunctional life of the Wilson family. Lovibond's additional television credits include: "Loving You" opposite Niamh Cusack and Douglas Henshall; "Single"; Channel 4 sitcom "Nathan Barley," co-written by Charlie Brooker; BBC One crime series "Messiah"; BBC Three comedy "Delta Forever" (nominated for a BAFTA Scotland Award for best entertainment program); ITV2's British sitcom "FM" opposite Chris O'Dowd; award-winning 12-part costume drama series "Titanic: Blood and Steel," about the construction of the RMS Titanic; and ITV drama series "The Poison Tree" alongside MyAnna Buring and Matthew Goode.

In 2005, Lovibond made her film debut in Roman Polanski's award-winning adaptation of the classic Dickens tale "Oliver Twist." In 2009, Lovibond starred in Sam Taylor-Johnson's directorial debut, "Nowhere Boy," a biopic about John Lennon's adolescence, the creation of his first band, the Quarrymen, and its evolution into the Beatles.

In 2010, Lovibond appeared in "Chatroom," a British thriller film directed by Hideo Nakata, about five teenagers who meet on the internet and encourage each other's bad behavior. She was also seen in "London Boulevard," a 2010 British film noir based on Ken Bruen's novel of the same name, with screenplay and direction by William Monahan, marking his directorial debut. Lovibond also took on a leading role in British crime thriller "4.3.2.1.," co-directed, co-produced and starring Noel Clarke.

In 2011, Lovibond had a supporting role in American romantic comedy and box-office hit "No Strings Attached," starring Natalie Portman and Ashton Kutcher. Her previous film credits include "Crusade in Jeans," an adaptation of Thea Beckman's book of the same name. In February 2014, Lovibond starred in the warped urban comedy film "Eight Minutes Idle," based upon Matt Thorne's award-winning novel about life in a call center.

In May 2014, Lovibond starred as Robin in Sky Atlantic's six-part comedy series "Mr. Sloane," alongside Nick Frost and Olivia Colman. In August 2014, she was seen in James Gunn's "Guardians of the Galaxy," produced by Marvel Studios and distributed by Walt Disney Studios Motion Pictures. Lovibond made her U.S. television debut in the third season of Emmy®-nominated CBS/Sky Living drama "Elementary" as Kitty Winters, Sherlock's new protégé. She also appeared in a supporting role in the indie romantic comedy "Man Up," opposite Simon Pegg and Lake Bell.

Lovibond recently reprised her role as Izzy Gould in the third series of BBC2's British comedy "W1A," John Morton's follow-up to multi-BAFTA-winning comedy series "Twenty Twelve." Lovibond starred alongside Hugh Bonneville, Jessica Hynes and Jonathan Bailey. She starred in Barney Norris' "Nightfall" at the Bridge Theatre. She returned to the stage in 2019 in David Hare's "The Bay at Nice." Starring opposite Dame Penelope Wilton, the play explored the clash of a mother-daughter relationship. She was most recently seen in a cameo role in "Rocketman," the Elton John biographical musical film directed by Dexter Fletcher. The film premiered at the 2019 Cannes Film Festival.

WALLACE SHAWN (Mr. Crocus) has appeared in numerous films, including: four directed by Louis Malle, including "My Dinner with Andre" and "Vanya on 42nd Street"; and five directed by Woody Allen, including "Manhattan" and "Radio Days." He also appeared in Amy Heckerling's "Clueless" and "Vamps," Paul Bartel's "Scenes From the Class Struggle in Beverly Hills," Alan Rudolph's "The Moderns," Tom Noonan's "The Wife," Rob Reiner's "The Princess Bride," Patricia Rozema's "Kit Kittredge," Richard Ayoade's "The Double" and Paul Weitz's "Admission."

He played the title role in "A Master Builder," directed by Jonathan Demme. He is the voice of Rex in "Toy Story," "Toy Story 2" "Toy Story 3" and "Toy Story 4." He has appeared on a number of television shows as well, including "The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel," "The Good Fight," "She's Gotta Have It" and "Mr. Robot," and has had recurring roles on the television shows "The Cosby Show," "Murphy Brown," "The 'L' Word," "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine," "Gossip Girl," "The Good Wife," "Mozart in the Jungle" and "Young Sheldon."

On stage he has appeared in his own plays: "The Hotel Play," "The Fever," "Aunt Dan and Lemon," "The Designated Mourner," "Grasses of a Thousand Colors" and "Evening at the Talk House" (at both the National Theatre in London and the New Group in New York). Shawn's plays are published by TCG Books and Grove Press, and his books, "Essays" and "Night Thoughts," are published by Haymarket Books.

CRAIG ROBINSON (Mr. Jenkins) became a household name with his nine-season run as the acerbic Dunder Mifflin employee Darryl Philbin on NBC's Emmy® Award—winning sitcom "The Office." For his work on the series (he appeared in 120 episodes), Robinson earned three NAACP Image Award nominations and five Screen Actors Guild Award® nominations as part of the show's outstanding comedy ensemble.

His stand-up prowess and success on "The Office" caught the attention of Judd Apatow and Tyler Perry, the former casting Robinson in memorable straight-man roles in "Knocked Up" and "Pineapple Express," and Perry adding Robinson to the cast of his 2007 romantic drama, "Daddy's Little Girls."

Robinson played himself as part of the Hollywood juggernaut that comprises the Seth Rogen and Evan Goldberg comedy world in "This Is the End." With the likes of Rogen, James Franco, Paul Rudd, Jason Segel, Danny McBride and Emma Watson, the film imagines what would happen if celebrities attending a party at Franco's house encountered the apocalypse. He had previously appeared with McBride on several episodes of HBO's "Eastbound & Down." Robinson was also part of the hilarious ensemble that included John Cusack, Rob Corddry, Clark Duke and Chevy Chase in 2010's cult classic "Hot Tub Time Machine," reprising the role in the sequel, "Hot Tub Time Machine 2."

More recently, Robinson won the Sundance Film Festival special jury prize/individual performance, along with Independent Spirit and Gotham Award nominations, for his supporting turn in the indie drama "Morris from America." He was also seen in James Franco's comedy-drama "Zeroville" and the comedy "An Evening with Beverly Luff Linn," in which he plays the title character.

Other big-screen credits include: "Rapture-Palooza" and "Table 19" (both alongside Anna Kendrick), "Zack and Miri Make a Porno," "Austin Found," "Night at the Museum: Battle of the Smithsonian," "Father of Invention," "The Goods: Live Hard, Sell Hard," "Walk Hard: The Dewey Cox Story," "Get On Up," "Miss March," "Tragedy Girls" and the short "Prop 8: The Musical," alongside Jack Black, John C. Reilly and Neil Patrick Harris.

Additional television credits include guest stints on: "Curb Your Enthusiasm," "Arrested Development," "Reno 911!," "Brooklyn Nine-Nine," "Friends," "American Dad!" and "The Bernie Mac Show." He starred in his eponymous NBC sitcom, "Mr. Robinson," and had recurring roles on such series as FX's "Lucky," USA Network's "Mr. Robot" and Fox's "Ghosted."

KYLE BORNHEIMER (Crispin) made his television debut in 2008 starring in the critically acclaimed CBS comedy series "Worst Week." His performance in the lead role landed him rave reviews. TV Guide called Bornheimer "the biggest comic discovery of the new season," while The Hollywood Reporter called his performance "impeccable." Bornheimer also starred as a series lead in the NBC comedy "Perfect Couples" with Olivia Munn and David Walton, and in the CBS series "Angel from Hell" opposite Jane Lynch. In 2017, Bornheimer revisited the Vince Gilligan world by reprising his role as Ken Wins in "Better Call Saul," a role he originated in "Breaking Bad." Bornheimer is also known to audiences for recurring roles in "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" (as Teddy, the world's most boring man) and as Michaela Watkins' love interest, Jack, on the Golden Globe®—nominated Hulu dramedy "Casual."

His additional television credits include "Westworld," "Will and Grace," "Love," "The Office," "Party Down," "Justified," "Arrested Development," "Workaholics," "Agent Carter," "Playing House" and "The Mindy Project." On the film side, Bornheimer starred in the Disney feature "You Again," with Kristen Bell, Sigourney Weaver, Jamie Lee Curtis and Betty White. His scene-stealing performance earned him outstanding reviews from critics including USA Today and the Los Angeles Times, which noted, "It's Kyle Bornheimer who makes the best impression. His delivery of a rehearsal dinner toast that references Air Supply ranks as one of the most awkward (and funny) movie moments of the year."

Bornheimer also starred opposite Jay Baruchel and T.J. Miller in "She's Out of My League," and had a lead role in Leslye Headland's critically acclaimed feature "Bachelorette," opposite Kirsten Dunst, Isla Fisher and James Marsden. Additionally, he had a role as Katherine Heigl's husband in "The Big Wedding," starring Robert De Niro, Diane Keaton, Susan Sarandon and Amanda Seyfried.

Bornheimer starred in the feature films "Little Evil," with Adam Scott and Sally Field; "The D Train," opposite Jack Black and James Marsden; the Coen Brothers' feature "Hail Caesar!" and Warren Beatty's "Rules Don't Apply." Most recently, he starred opposite Adam Driver and Scarlett Johansson in the new film from Noah Baumbach, "Marriage Story."

CHLOE COLEMAN (Molly Moskins) is a child actor based in Los Angeles, Calif. She's known for her portrayal of Skye Carlson in HBO's award-winning series "Big Little Lies" directed by Jean-Marc Vallee (Season 1) and Andrea Arnold (Season 2). Prior to that, Coleman appeared as Idit Obadya in Amazon's "Transparent," as well as Zoe Sturgis on ABC's "Superstore."

Yet to be released films include James Cameron's "Avatar 2," where Coleman plays the young version of a Navi lad, Lo'ak, and "Pupstar: Christmas," where Coleman voices the spirited character of Charlie. In the recently picked up Amazon series "Upload," directed by Greg Daniels, Coleman portrays Neveah, alongside Robbie Amell. One of Coleman's favorite roles she's had the chance to play is the half-alien Marie Schuhart in the pilot "Roadside Picnic," directed by Alan Taylor for Sony Pictures Television. Of Eastern European, English and African descent, Coleman began acting at 5 years old when cast on "Glee" for Fox, as a ballet dancer. In her spare time, Coleman loves to draw, dance and play the piano, as well as edit and direct movies with her friends. Coleman's a competitive swimmer and straight-A student, who has a lot of faith in our world and the people in it.

KEI (Rollo) is Canadian-born and American-raised, having lived in Los Angeles and, more recently, Chicago. He was last seen crossing the boards in the Chicago premiere of "Last Stop on Market Street." Getting to work with Lamont Dozier of Motown fame and his son Paris was indeed an honor and helped him infuse rap, song and dance into the lead character of CJ.

The 2017 holiday season marked Kei's professional stage debut as Turkey Child, Aaron Cratchit and Old Joe's

Assistant in the Goodman Theatre's 40th Anniversary production of "A Christmas Carol." He has been fortunate to work in television on commercials for Sprint, RainSoft, T. Rowe Price and a P.S.A. for the Chicago Soda Tax campaign. In the world of print, Kei has modeled for the famed Second City Theatre. Singing with the Chicago Children's Choir (Ogden International chapter) last year proved to be a blast, and in his spare time Kei enjoys studying piano, karate and swimming.

At only 12 years old, AI-CHAN CARRIER (Corrina Corrina) has experienced a lot in her young career. Born in Newport Beach, Calif., and raised in Orange County, Carrier is an ethnically ambiguous, half-Japanese, one-fourth Mexican and one-fourth Caucasian little dynamo.

A dual citizen of Japan and the United States, she attended elementary school in Japan during the summer from ages 5 to 7. Her name Ai means "love" in Japanese, which explains her passion for her craft. At the young age of 4, Carrier began studying singing and dancing and soon booked her first professional job in "The King and I" as Princess Ying Yaowalak. More recently, she co-starred in a recurring role in the CBS drama "Training Day" with Bill Paxton and voiced multiple characters on the Disney cartoon series "The Lion Guard."

Carrier has shot multiple commercials and worked on two spots with Kevin Hart for Rally Health. Proudly, she won a Young Artist Award for best actress in a commercial in 2018. As an animal lover, she loves horseback riding and her dog Coco, a maltipoo, which she received as a gift for her 10th birthday. She enjoys making homemade slime and putty, swimming and learning new card tricks.

ABOUT THE FILMMAKERS

TOM McCARTHY (Director/Screenwriter/Producer) is best known for the film "Spotlight," for which he received an Academy Award® for best original screenplay and was nominated for best director. In 2009, McCarthy shared story credit with Pete Docter and Bob Peterson on the hit animated feature "Up," for which he received an Oscar® nomination for best original screenplay. He also served as a director and executive producer for the Netflix television series "13 Reasons Why."

McCarthy was known primarily as a busy working actor until he burst onto the filmmaking scene with his critically acclaimed writing and directing feature film debut, "The Station Agent," released in 2003 by Miramax Films. "The Station Agent" premiered at the Sundance Film Festival, where it was awarded the audience award and the Waldo Salt Screenwriting Award. The film was also awarded a BAFTA for best original screenplay and two Independent Spirit Awards, including the John Cassavetes Award (for the best feature made for $500,000 or less). The National Board of Review named it third on its list of the Ten Best Films of the Year. It was nominated for three SAG Awards®, including best ensemble, and was also nominated by the WGA for best original screenplay. The film won awards at many film festivals, including San Sebastian, Stockholm, Mexico City and Aspen.

McCarthy followed this with the equally acclaimed "The Visitor" in 2007. McCarthy won the award for best screenplay from the San Diego Film Critics Society, the Satellite Award for best screenplay, the Independent Spirit Award for best direction and was nominated for a Writers Guild Award. At the Deauville American Film Festival, McCarthy received the Grand Special Prize. Richard Jenkins received an Oscar® nomination as best actor, and the film itself was nominated for numerous awards including an Image Award, a Gotham Award and a David di Donatello Award.

In addition to his writing and directing, McCarthy continues his career as an actor. He made his screen debut in the 1992 film "Crossing the Bridge," and went on to appear in such films as "Flags of Our Fathers," "Syriana," "Good Night, and Good Luck.," "Year of the Dog" "Meet the Parents," "All the King's Men," "Duplicity," "2012" and "The Lovely Bones." He was featured in the final season of HBO's critically acclaimed series "The Wire," and also appeared in several television shows, including a series-regular role on "Boston Public."

In 2011, McCarthy wrote and directed "Win Win," starring Paul Giamatti and Amy Ryan. It was released by Fox Searchlight to great critical acclaim. He wrote and directed "The Cobbler," starring Adam Sandler and Dustin Hoffman, in 2014, and co-wrote the screenplay for "Christopher Robin," starring Ewan McGregor, which was released by Disney in 2018. He is currently at work on "Stillwater" for Focus Features, which he wrote the screenplay for and is directing.

STEPHAN PASTIS (Screenwriter) is the creator of "Pearls Before Swine," an acclaimed comic strip that appears in more than 800 newspapers and boasts a devoted following.

In 2013, Pastis was inspired to break out of the comic-strip box, penning his first children's book, "Timmy Failure: Mistakes Were Made," which became an instant New York Times bestseller. "Mistakes Were Made" was quickly followed by six other installments in the popular middle-grade series starring a brilliantly bad detective with a sidekick polar bear. Critics have praised the author for appealing to young readers with his knack for comic timing and the interplay among cartoon, text and elements of the absurd in his storytelling.

JIM WHITAKER (Producer) is the chairman of Whitaker Entertainment based at Walt Disney Studios. He most recently produced "A Wrinkle in Time" for Disney, starring Oprah Winfrey, Reese Witherspoon and Mindy Kaling. Previous producing credits include: "Pete's Dragon," "The Finest Hours" and "The Odd Life of Timothy Green," also for Disney. Whitaker has had a long career in the film industry, starting with his first job assisting craft services on John Waters' "Hairspray" in 1987. His career in Hollywood began as an intern at Imagine Entertainment, where he eventually rose to president of motion picture production during a 16-year period with the company.

He executive produced films such as "8 Mile," "Friday Night Lights," "American Gangster," "Changeling," "Cinderella Man" and "Curious George." Prior to joining Disney in 2011, he directed "Rebirth," a Peabody Award—winning documentary. The feature-length film combines time-lapse photography of the rebuilding of the World Trade Center site with intimate stories of five people coping with grief post-9/11. The film premiered at the Sundance Film Festival in 2011 and was released theatrically by Oscilloscope. It aired on Showtime on the 10th anniversary of September 11th. A 10-minute installation, "Rebirth at Ground Zero," currently resides at the 9/11 Memorial & Museum at Ground Zero in New York City.

Whitaker is a graduate of Georgetown University and holds an MFA from the Peter Stark Program at USC, as well as an honorary doctorate from Pace University in New York. He currently resides in Los Angeles with his wife and two children. He is a 2004 Henry Crown Fellow of the Aspen Institute and a member of the Aspen Global Leadership Network.

MICHAEL BEDERMAN (Executive Producer) most recently executive produced Judd Apatow's upcoming untitled comedy for Universal, which will be released next summer. Previously, Bederman produced Edward Norton's "Motherless Brooklyn," starring Norton, Bruce Willis and Willem Dafoe, which premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival.

Bederman is known for his work on "Spotlight," which was nominated for six Academy Awards® and won the Oscar® for best screenplay as well as best picture in 2016. Other credits include Niels Arden Oplev's "Flatliners," David Frankel's "Collateral Beauty," Tom McCarthy's "The Cobbler," Michael Cuesta's "Kill the Messenger," Amy Berg's "Every Secret Thing," Craig Zisk's "The English Teacher," Joel Schumacher's "Twelve" and George Nolfi's "The Adjustment Bureau," among many others.

MASANOBU TAKAYANAGI (Director of Photography) previously worked on the best picture Oscar® winner "Spotlight," starring Michael Keaton, Mark Ruffalo and Rachel McAdams. They also worked together on director Tom McCarthy's next feature film, "Stillwater," starring Matt Damon and Abigail Breslin, which is also expecting a release in 2020.

Takayanagi frequently collaborates with Scott Cooper, having shot the western "Hostiles," starring Rosamund Pike and Christian Bale; "Black Mass," starring Johnny Depp; and "Out of the Furnace," starring Christian Bale, for the director. Other credits include Oscar® winner "Silver Linings Playbook," directed by David O. Russell and starring Bradley Cooper and Jennifer Lawrence; Joe Carnahan's "The Grey"; and Gavin O'Conner's "Warrior," which was Takayanagi's first feature film as a director of photography.

Previously, Takayanagi worked as a 2nd Unit DP for iconic cinematographers like Rodrigo Prieto on "Babel" and "State of Play," and for Robert Richardson on "Eat Pray Love." Takayanagi attended the AFI Conservatory, where he shot the critically acclaimed short film "Shui Hen," for which he won best student cinematography at the Palm Springs International Short Fest (2003). The following year, he was awarded the American Society of Cinematographers' John F. Seitz student heritage award.

PHILIP MESSINA (Production Designer) most recently collaborated with Darren Aronofsky on "Mother!" His work on "Mother!" earned him several nominations for best production design, most notably from the Chicago Independent Film Critics Circle and International Online Cinema Awards.

Messina designed the environment for Alejandro Iñárritu's groundbreaking VR experience "Carne Y Arena." This project opened to critical acclaim at the 2017 Cannes Film Festival and went on to earn Iñárritu a special-category Academy Award®. The installation was on display at Prada Museum (Milan), Los Angeles County Museum of Art and Centro Cultural de Tlatelolco (Mexico City). A touring production is currently traveling multiple venues in Europe.

Other film projects include the Civil War drama "The Free State of Jones," directed by Gary Ross. This marked his second collaboration with Ross after the first installment of "The Hunger Games." He went on to design the entirety of the franchise, "Catching Fire" and "Mockingjay" parts 1 and 2, with director Francis Lawrence. In 2013, he was nominated for a Saturn Award for his design of "Catching Fire." In 2011, Messina designed Marc Forster's "Machine Gun Preacher." Prior to that, Messina worked with M. Night Shyamalan to create the fantasy adventure "The Last Airbender."

He has also frequently collaborated with director Steven Soderbergh, designing "Ocean's Eleven," "Ocean's Twelve" and "Ocean's Thirteen" as well as "The Good German," "Eros," "Solaris," "Traffic" and "Erin Brockovich." They first met when Messina worked as the art director on "Out of Sight." "Ocean's Eleven" garnered Messina an Art Directors Guild Award nomination for outstanding production design in a contemporary film. Additional design credits include Curtis Hanson's acclaimed drama "8 Mile," starring Eminem, and Gregory Jacobs' directorial debut, "Criminal."

Born and raised in Lawrence, Mass., Messina graduated from Cornell University with a professional degree in architecture and was awarded the Architecture College's highest honor for his undergraduate thesis. His initial foray into films was as a set designer on "Mermaids," "School Ties" and "Housesitter," which were all filmed in the Boston area. Relocating to Los Angeles, he went on to serve as the art director on such films as "Hard Target," "The Neon Bible," "Reckless," "The Associate," "Trial and Error" and "The Sixth Sense."

For television, Messina was the production designer on the pilot episode of the critically acclaimed series "Freaks and Geeks," created by Paul Feig and executive produced by Judd Apatow.

Messina is married to designer Kristen Toscano Messina, with whom he frequently collaborates. One such collaboration resulted in their son Luca. They reside in Venice Beach, Calif.

TOM MCARDLE, ACE (Editor) has edited all six of Tom McCarthy's feature films, including "Spotlight," which won best picture at the 2016 Academy Awards[®]. McArdle was nominated for the Academy Award for best achievement in film editing for "Spotlight." He also won the 2016 Independent Spirit Award for best editing. Other films McArdle has cut include: "The Station Agent," "Marshall," "In a World...," "Win Win," "Hello I Must Be Going," "What They Had" and "The Visitor."

McArdle grew up in Garden City, N.Y., where he set the Long Island record for the two-mile run (indoors) in 1987, a feat that stood until 2014. He attended Dartmouth College, where he studied literature and film, and currently splits his time between Los Angeles and New York.

RICH MCBRIDE (Visual Effects Supervisor) has worked in the visual effects industry since 2000. He first joined Industrial Light & Magic in 2009 as a digital compositor on "Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen." Prior to joining ILM he worked as an in-house visual effects supervisor for Bay Area Effects Studios, Giant Killer Robots and The Orphanage on projects such as "Fantastic Four," "World Trade Center," "The Spirit" and "Red Cliff II."

McBride spent two years at Framestore London working as the visual effects supervisor on Alfonso Cuarón's Academy Award®—winning "Gravity." He returned stateside to rejoin the ILM team working as a digital compositor on films such as "Pacific Rim," "The Lone Ranger" and "Lucy." His first role as the studio visual effects supervisor and as an ILM visual effects supervisor came on Alejandro González Iñárritu's 2015 epic, "The Revenant." McBride was honored with two Visual Effects Society Awards for his work on "Gravity" and a VES Award for outstanding supporting visual effects for "The Revenant." His work on "The Revenant" earned him an Academy Award nomination, and he became a member of the Academy in 2016. In 2016, he joined director Ava DuVernay on the Disney production of "A Wrinkle in Time."

McBride received his BA from San Francisco State University, where he studied film and animation. He learned his computer skills while working for Bay Area game company Rocket Science Games. Working on games led to working in the advertising world with a small visual effects team at the San Francisco—based Western Images, where he worked as a generalist and refined his industry skills in all disciplines of computer graphics.

His love for movies and working in visual effects stems from a creative background in painting and playing music in San Francisco.

KARI PERKINS (Costume Designer) began her career designing costumes for community theaters in Dallas, Texas. Her first film as a costume designer was the seminal independent feature "Dazed and Confused," which launched the careers of Perkins, Richard Linklater and Matthew McConaughey. Perkins' collaboration with Linklater has continued through the years, and their films together include "A Scanner Darkly," "Bernie," "Boyhood," "Everybody Wants Some!!," "Last Flag Flying" and "Where'd You Go, Bernadette." Perkins was nominated for a Costume Designers Guild Award for excellence in a contemporary film for "Boyhood."

Perkins' other credits include: "Wind River," written and directed by Taylor Sheridan and starring Jeremy Renner and Elizabeth Olsen; the critically acclaimed "Mud," directed by Jeff Nichols and starring Matthew McConaughey and Reese Witherspoon; "Parkland," directed by Peter Landesman and produced by Tom Hanks; "Devil's Knot," directed by Atom Egoyan and starring Colin Firth and Reese Witherspoon; and the pilot "Deliverance Creek," directed by Jon Amiel.

Perkins continues to work on theater and dance productions. Her credits include: Jonathan Watkins' "Crash," with the Texas Ballet Theater; Ballet Austin's Stephen Mills' "Women and Light," "Torso" and "Wall of Names"; Sharir+Bustamante's "For Four"; Andrea Ariel's "Gyre," "Five2Ten," "Flush," "Everything Between" and "The Bowie Project"; Kathy Dunn Hamrick Dance Co.'s "Murmur," "Royal Pair," "Spin" and "Woman Smiling"; and Sally Jacques' "Devotion," "Zed," "Blue Pearl Trilogy" and "Body Count."

Born in England into a non-musical family, ROLFE KENT (Composer) intuitively felt at age 12 that he wanted to be a film composer, although his early musical training was brief and not so formal. Citing Maurice Jarre's "Lawrence of Arabia" and Ennio Morricone's "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly" as inspirations, Kent took the advice of an early music teacher to avoid rigid course work that would dampen his enthusiasm. He followed an entirely different path and, taking counterpoint to what is often cited as culture mired in cynicism, profited from his early course work in theology to relate it to music.

After enrolling in psychology studies at the University of Leeds in Yorkshire, Kent's musical career was casually begun at a dance club when the director of a play offered him a chance to do the music. His jump start was his composition for a stage musical, "Gross," at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival, a springboard for authors, composers and performers.

In the confines of his musically busy studio, one can immediately see why his musical personality is as distinct and his own. Constantly on the go, adventurous and curious, Kent has developed a style that is not only distinct but indicative of his aversion to the anticipated score in tone, texture and rhythm. The walls are lined with many familiar and many more unfamiliar instruments, gingerly handled and gleefully demonstrated for their sonic qualities.

Among his collection are the Indonesian percussion instrument the angklung; the shawm (first used in military maneuvers as a psychological weapon); the melodica, used for the light, soothing effect in Kent's jazz-infused score for his Golden Globe®—nominated "Sideways"; and an instrument he discovered and cannot name that sounds like the world's beaches at their most romantic high tide...combined.

Kent has the distinction of attracting and sustaining relationships with directors as popular and diverse as Alexander Payne, Mark Waters, Jason Reitman, Burr Steers and Richard Shepard.
