

BIOGRAPHY

Tom Hugh-Jones Executive Producer

As the creative director of Plimsoll Productions' world-leading Natural History department, Tom Hugh-Jones is responsible for the origination, execution and delivery of the company's extensive landmark wildlife portfolio. In the five years since Hugh-Jones joined the Plimsoll team, he has developed and produced numerous hit titles for all the major streamers, including the jaw-dropping "Hostile Planet" for National Geographic, the groundbreaking "Night on Earth" on Netflix and the genre-busting mini-epic "Tiny World" for Apple Tv+.

With over 25 years of experience in television, Hugh-Jones has earned an industry-wide reputation for his visual flair, creative instincts and versatile storytelling skills. Throughout his career, Hugh-Jones' innovative approach to filmmaking has been recognized with numerous awards, including multiple Emmys® and BAFTAs. He is credited with reinventing the Natural History genre as the showrunner on "Planet Earth II," the top-rated television series of all time on IMDB.com and the most-watched nature show in over 25 years.
