ERIC LADIN

'Chris Kraft'

Eric Ladin plays the series regular role of 'Chris Kraft' in National Geographic's original scripted series THE RIGHT STUFF on Disney+, based on Tom Wolfe's bestselling nonfiction series, which dramatically explores the early days of the NASA space program.

He recurs in the second season of Doug Liman's "Impulse" on YouTube Red, as well as in Apple+'s much-anticipated series "For All Mankind," from Ronald D. Moore. Eric previously starred as a series regular in History Channel's military drama "Six." He also has recurred in Amazon's "Bosch," Netflix's "Longmire" and in USA's third season of "Shooter," opposite Ryan Phillippe.

Eric was a series regular alongside Jack Black and Tim Robbins in HBO's political comedy "The Brink," which followed his critically acclaimed recurring role as the iconic J. Edgar Hoover on HBO's "Boardwalk Empire." He was lauded for his series regular turn as campaign manager 'Jamie Wright' on the hit AMC original series "The Killing," a crime drama in which everyone was a suspect. In the end, he was revealed as the killer. He has received notice for many other roles, including his arc as January Jones' brother in "Mad Men;" his arc portraying Chloe Sevigny's diabolical doctor/brother in "Big Love;" and as a series regular in the hard-hitting HBO miniseries "Generation Kill." His also is known to audiences for his multitude of guest-starring roles on shows like "Justified," "Suits" and "Grey's Anatomy," to name a few.

In feature films, Eric played a long-time member of Bradley Cooper's platoon in Clint Eastwood's Navy SEAL drama "American Sniper" and starred as 'Detective Clark' in New Line's horror hit "Annabelle," a spin-off of "The Conjuring." He next reprises the role in New Line Cinema's upcoming horror thriller "Wolves at the Door."

In addition to his on-screen performances, Eric is blessed with an extraordinary speaking voice, as evidenced by his many roles in hit video games including leads in the hugely popular "Call of Duty," "Infamous 2," and "Left for Dead 2." He also narrated the History Channel's "Mud Cats" and has voiced characters in many cartoons such as "Fish Hooks," "Pickle and Peanut" and "Avengers Assemble."

A proud native of Houston, Texas, and graduate of USC, Eric currently resides in Los Angeles with his wife and two sons.
